

Lead4Change is a widely used and innovative student-led program that educates students about leadership and community service through classroom lessons. Leadership skills are developed as students practice by leading a project to benefit their school or community.

Refer to this chart to determine the CASEL Competencies addressed within the Lead4Change lessons; descriptions listed below.

SELF-AWARENESS

Students assess their strengths and limitations by identifying and reflecting on events that have helped shape who they are.

- > Lifeline
- > 3 big questions
- > Self and team role reflection

SELF-MANAGEMENT

Students learn goal setting and organizational skills by developing and executing an action plan with their team that meets a school or community need.

- > Research
- > Action plan
- > Setting goals

RESPONSIBLE DECISION-MAKING

Students consider the well-being of others. Researching and analyzing school or community needs and working as a team to develop a solution requires problem solving and communication skills. Teams track their progress and adapt their actions to make necessary changes within their service project.
